ground that politics and religion must be united. Hear it : "If we would have our religion worth any thing—have a practical influence and decided value-we can no more separate it from our politics than we can separate it from our domestic relations.'

"The New York Tribune takes the

"The trouble is, with that theory, that the politics would control the religion, not religion the politics."-[Wheeling

What is Religion? and what is Politics? The religion that we see about us is sectarianism—the partyism of theology: the politics that we mostly practice in partyism-the sectarianism of the civil polity. Than these in unity, nothing could be more mischievous; it is, in fact, that "Church and State" partnership which all, in consideration of the known evils which it has produced, are so ready to condemn. That all men, in whatever they do, whether the affairs be public or private, should act under the influence of religious motives-that is, of their superior conceptions of right-is true; but what more is required for this than individual desires to do justly on every occasion?

The truth is, that politics and religion have no immediate relation to each other, while politics and morals have an intimate and necessary connection. Failing to discriminate between the provinces of religion and morals, or rather confounding them together, the teachers of religion assume authority in matters of social behavior, and writers, such as the one of the Tribune, falling into the same mistake, would bring that branch of ethics which belongs to civil conduct, within the domain of ghostly dictation. When there shall have arisen a true philosophy-one that is founded upon correct conceptions of the rules of human obligation, there will be seen to be no need of any intermixture of religious doctrines ordinances or institutions in the political concerns of the commonwealth.

Rights of Married Women.

The Legislature of New York has before it a bill to protect the rights and property of married women, providing that "any married female"-meaning, it is to be presumed, of the human race-"may invest her property or earnings in business, and hold it and its profits for her own use, as against her husband or his creditors." The New York Times, copying the bill, says: "There are probably some theorists who will object, on abstract grounds, to the enactment of such a law as this."

And well they may. If marriage is a "holy ordinance"-if what Gop hath joined together it is beyond the rightful power of man to put asunder-if man and his wife are "one flesh," any statute whose effect is to sever, in whole or in part, the entirety of this mystic connection, is wrong, and contrary to the paramount law of the universe. In the eye of the Church, hand is married to hand and goods to goods. The union is complete, not only in the parties, but in the subsidiaries; and to hold that there may be a divorce of the latter, while the former remains unimpaired, is a departure from first principles, which, in every logical size, about a column in space on each page. aspect, is totally indefensible. Any other view of the case is infidelity. To say that, simply because a woman is married to a drunkard, a brute, a blackguard, a thief, a profligate, or a spendthrift, she broke jail at that place some few days since. has, therefore, a right to save her property, or her earnings, and devote them to the preservation of her own existence, or that of her children, is to fly directly in the face of that doctrine which virtually declares the marriage contract to be eternal, not only in respect to the parties, but to all they are and all they possess.

Moses and the Colored People.

According to the speech of Mr. ROBERT CHRISTY, of Butler County, in the Legislature, prejudice on account of color originated in the fact that Moses married a negro woman, contrary to the wishes of his family. Says Mr. CHRISTY:

"The prejudice against color will always exist. From the day that the first verse of the twelfth chapter of Numbers was written—'And Miriam and Aaron spake against Moses because of the Ethiopian woman he had married, for he had married an Ethiopian woman -to this day this prejudice has not in the slightest degree diminished.

If Mr. Christy had read a few verses farther, he would have discovered that the Lord took the part of Moses in the controversy, and came down expressly to inflict a punishment upon his captious relatives for their interference in his domestic arrangements. When people cite scriptural authority, they should be careful to give the whole story. The moral of the chapter is the opposite of that which is sought to be drawn from it; whether it is correct or not, is a different question.

We have not a word to say in favor of Moses. He was evidently not a very pleasant man in his family. One of his other wives-for he appears to have indulged in a plurality-declared, on a certain occasion, that he had been "a bloody husband" to her. His slaying of the Egyptian showed that he could strike, and his breaking all the ten commandments at once proves that he was now and then hasty in his doings. He picked up his wives wherever he happened to be; and seems to have preferred the foreign to the domestic article-violating, in this respect. the laws which he imposed upon his followers. Indeed, if it had not appeared that his brother and sister took less than nothing by their motive, we should be half inclined to suspect they were in the right.

The Ballet.

That crotchety sort of an individual PATER FAMILIAS, complains, in the Sunday Enquirer, of the MORALS of the ballet at the Opera-house. We feel more inclined to complain of the MATERIALS. Without saying any thing in derogation either of the private character or the domestic virtues of the divine BOUXARY, the radiant ZLOFFSKOWSKY, and their associates, or the particular ethical effects which their performances are likely to produce upon the rising generation, we must be permitted to confess that their united exertions make up about the poorest crop of temptation we ever saw gathered from an equal expanse of territory. We have very little charity for the troubles, or respect for the scruples of PATER FAMILIAS. His fears are usually the most lively when there is the least necessity for them. His women-folks may be disgusted, but if they have any taste at all, there is no danger of their being contaminated by this ballet. Well-made limbs are, in general, taken as a satisfactory apology for brevity of drapery; and would, we suspect, be received as such by PATER FA-MILIAS himself. The difficulty in the case is, that the thing is poor-cheap-bad; pleasures. It is carrying the experiment disposed to give him a call. one step too far; and if persisted in, will have the effect to cause the reality of some other things to be suspected.

WE have determined to devote a portion of our editorial space for the special benefit of the manufacturers of this city and vicinity. The prosperity of Cincinnati depends upon our mechanics and manufacturers, more than upon any other class, and inasmuch as the new Exchange has been permanently established, we deem it proper to make this matter a speciality in our columns. We have engaged the exclusive services of Mr. S. S. BARRIE, late of the Gazette, to take charge of this department, and the articles under this head will be placed upon the editorial page, where the subject will receive the attention which its importance demands.

WHAT'S THE MATTER WITH MAIN STREET? L. Hickman & Co. attempted yesterday to sell, on perpetual lease, valuable business property, forty feet front on Main street, between Third and Fourth, running back 200 feet to Bank Alley, and found no one ready to offer $1,800 per annum ground rent, which was the limit, hence no sale.

Hedges, Free & Co., No. 6 Main street, the enterprising projectors of a great variety of cast-iron novelties, have recently placed on sale at their extensive Warerooms a very complete Sugar-mill for Grocers' use. This Mill has a peculiar arrangement of cylinders, by which the lumps of sugar are perfectly disintegrated, and the whole mixed into a uniform, lively mass, while the delicate grain of the sugar is not in the least impaired. The operation is that of tearing the particles asunder, rather than of crushing and pulverising them, as is ordinarily done.

The Mill will grind and mix the sugar as fast as it can be supplied with a shovel, or at the rate of a hundred pounds per minute; thus disposing of the stubborn contents of an entire hogshead in twelve or fifteen minutes. The Mill is inexpensive, and Grocers are generally supplying themselves with it.

GUILFORD'S HEMATOGENIC SIRUP.

The following is an extract from a letter from Mr. Stephen M. Wheeler, a gentleman well known, and formerly connected with the public schools of this CLARE COUNTY, OHIO, March 29, 1859.

CLARE COUNTY, OHIO, March 29, 1859.

Mr. WILLIAM GUILFORD—Dear Sir: I am rejoiced to hear of the success of your "Hematogenic Sirup." Ever since my attack of congestive chills and violent lung spaces, some three years since, my health has been gradually declining, having been troubled most of the time with night-sweats, a bad bronchial cough, and severe nervous prostrations, which frequently destroyed my voice for five or six hours at a time. In November last I obtained some of your medicine, since which time my cough has been relieved; my night-sweats and bad nervous shake. Dowles have ceased; and I have gained some twenty pounds in fleah. If others, who are suffering from affections of the Throat and Lungs, can obtain as much velief from your "Hematogenic Sirup" as I have, they should feel grateful to you for your valuable medicinal preparations. I am pleased to learn that Messre, Brown & Mogers, Bruggiste. of Springfield, are to be furnished with your medicine for sale, Yours, trail." STEPHEN M. WHEELER.

CINCINNATI, February 13, 1859.

About a month ago I called at Dr. Ayer's. Throat and Lung Institute, "DWeat Fourth sireet, for treatment for Tonnilitis and Chronic Inflammation of the Throat. The tonsils and uvula (or palate) were so much enlarged that there seemed to be but one course to pursue, and that was to cut them off; this I had been told by other physicians, who had also candidly told me they could not cure me. Dr. Ayer made a careful examination and pronounced excision unnecessary, and preceribed Medicated Inhalation and topical applications, with general treatment, and the result is a perfector transper! The inflammation has been allayed, and the tonsils and palate reduced to their natural size and position. I now have no sorrenses or difficulty whatever of the throat, and exerting the analysis of the could be considered. His mode of treatment is rational, pleasant, and certainly in my case successful, and I have every reason to believe the Doctor is equally successful in all other cases while I have been under treatment at the Institute.
